

July 14, 1955

Dr. Richard Goodwin
Department of Botany
Connecticut College
New London, Conn.

Dear Dick:

At ~~New London~~ ^{Amherst}, I mentioned some undergraduate experiments on gradient of colchicine effect in root tips that you expressed some interest about.

I have dug out these old notes, and enclose them without the apologies they deserve. The sketches show something of the time-concentration relationships. The last few pages of ~~the~~ seminar reports add a few details— I hope they will be more intelligible to you than they are to me ~~now~~.

At any rate, you see, I was once a botanist (of sorts!)

That was a good meeting.

Yours sincerely,

Joshua Lederberg
Professor of Genetics